

How to post a reply

Replies are responses to Threads created by yourself or by someone else in the discussion board. You can use replies as part of a dialogue/conversation in the board. While threads are used to create a new conversational strand, replies are merely responses within the same conversation.

- To create a New Reply, you would have to first be within a thread. You can then click on the 'Reply' button to create a new reply

- Posting a reply is very similar to posting a thread. The very same message editor will display on your reply page.

- When you have finished creating your reply, click on the 'Submit' button.